VIII. Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

The disclosures of claims 1 and 14 indicate a third lens group that comprises a lens exhibiting a positive refractive power, a lens exhibiting a positive refractive power and a lens exhibiting a negative refractive power, which has a positive refractive power overall and is fixed in relation to the optical axis direction when magnifying and focusing, and furthermore indicate that the third lens group is defined by the inclusion of a doublet lens with a cementing surface wherein the convex surface faces the image side.

However, in the invention indicated in preferred embodiment 2 (example 3), the third lens group does not include a doublet lens; therefore, embodiment 2 does not conform to the invention as set forth in claim 1.

Furthermore, although the features set forth in the aforementioned preferred embodiment and example may be retained in the description as information, it is preferable not to disclose specific items, such as preferred embodiments, examples or comparative examples, which set forth features that do not pertain to the invention.

Claims 1-3, 7-10 and 14-22

Documents 1-3 do not disclose the zoom lens set forth in independent claims 1 and 14 of the present application, which is configured from a first lens group exhibiting a positive refractive power, a second lens group exhibiting a negative refractive power, a third lens group exhibiting a positive refractive power and a fourth lens group exhibiting a positive refractive power in that order from the object side, wherein when changing the magnification from a wide angle to a telescopic angle, the aforementioned second lens group moves along the optical axis and the aforementioned fourth lens group moves along the optical axis so as to maintain a predetermined position in relation to the position of the image plane, which varies in accordance with the movement of the aforementioned second lens group and the object, and the aforementioned first lens group comprises a negative lens, a positive lens and a positive lens in that order from the object side to the image side, the aforementioned second lens group comprises a negative meniscus lens, a negative lens, a biconvex positive lens and a negative lens in that order from the object side to the image side and the aforementioned third lens group comprises a positive lens, a positive lens and a negative lens in that order from the object side to the image side, said lens fulfilling either condition (5) or condition (6). Likewise, the fulfilment of either the aforementioned condition (5) or the aforementioned condition (6) cannot be said to be obvious to a person skilled in the art. Therefore, the inventions set forth in claims 1-3, 7-10 and 14-22 are novel and involve an inventive step in relation to the aforementioned documents 1-3.
